The "fight"™ against disease and common description of death as having "lost the battle"™ reflect a thoroughly modern notion of death. This approach implies that death is an unexpected, unwarranted outcome to any illness.

Death: a foe to be conquered? Questioning the paradigm

After the M14's™ near-complete death of cutting-edge combat use, the Army still wanted it as their sniper rifle. Of course, many systems were tested by the Army during the Vietnam war, including the USMC M40 sniper weapon, For debatable reasons, the Army decided the M14 was the way for them.
